Prevent the Pressure of the Spring Push Service your Equipment NOW!

It's crucial to service your machine before it sits idle for the long winter months. If you skip this vital step, you risk damaging your machine. See the tips below for successful machine storage.

Change Fluid: If left to sit idle for long periods of time, the fallout and abrasives from fluids will eat away at components.

Water Removal: After washing your machine, run at high idle for 10-20 minutes to remove water from bearings, chains and all water-sensitive components.

Fuel 'er up: Always store equipment with a full tank. Empty tanks are prone to water condensation, which can lead to bacteria growth in your fuel system.

Take a dip: Ask us about dip strip tests to ensure your antifreeze is up to par for the long winter months.

Maintain battery life: Safely maintain your batteries during the long storage months. New Holland battery maintainers provide efficient charging to keep your battery at a full state of charge indefinitely.
